COMPETITIVE EXAMINATION AND CAREER COUNSELING GUIDANCE PROGRAM

Many career prospects are available in the dental health care fields. With the globalization of economy, dental professional can practice within as well as abroad Dentists can be involved in private practice, government services ,hospital care, research and academics. Since they have wide variety of opportunities to choose but have minimal exposure to possible career paths, this program gives the freshly graduating students an idea about wide variety of opportunities.

In college, students have treated patients in a hospital setting as most of their clinical work is in the college clinics. In addition, students may not be aware of the possible research or academic scope right after graduation, therefore GDCHA through this programs provide a tool to help students explore different career tracks so they can decide their path after graduation.
